

Dave Goldberg is the founder of Killer Bunny Entertainment, a Nashville based production company creating innovative programming in the broadcast, cable, commercial and streaming worlds with a strong footing in unscripted television and stand up comedy.

He is the executive producer of Funny Women of a Certain Age for Showtime. The comedy specials feature performances by Fran Drescher, Teri Hatcher, Luenell, Caroline Rhea and many other brilliantly funny female comedians in their 50's and up. Dave also created and executive produced six seasons of Gotham Comedy Live, a live via satellite series featuring the biggest names in comedy for Mark Cuban's AXS TV.

Dave and his team are currently in production on a feature length documentary chronicling the life of legendary country music songwriter Whisperin' Bill Anderson. The film features Dolly Parton, Vince Gill, Carrie Underwood and over a dozen of Nashville's biggest stars.

He created and produced FLIPPED: A Mobster Tells All for Discovery Channel. The documentary series offers first-person accounts from the "rats" that turned against and eventually brought down the mob's most powerful families. Dave produced 10 Great Reasons, an absurd music countdown series for Fuse, and created Under Fire, a hit for TruTV's RED ZONE. He has also created and developed pilots and series for networks including TLC, Lifetime and Oxygen.

Killer Bunny is prolific in the streaming and branded entertainment world with programs such as Tip Cup, a series with legendary recording artists going undercover as street musicians playing for charity, Cube Fabulous, the Internet's first original comedic makeover series, World Office Sports for M&M/Mars as well as commercial spots for GE, Hasbro, Yahoo and Sprite.

In 2021, Killer Bunny released its first podcast, "Killer's Vault." Hosted by Elisabeth Rohm and starring Academy Award nominee Eric Roberts, the podcast features never-before-seen intimate letters, private recordings and excerpts from unpublished diaries that dive deep inside the minds of the most brutal serial killers the world has ever known.

Dave also works in the narrative space with scripted projects in development based off his partner, Robert Cea's, best-selling true crime books that have been optioned by Bruckheimer Television and A24.

Prior to forming Killer Bunny, Dave was Vice President and Creative Director for CameraPlanet, a leading producer of cable television series and specials. He created and supervised programs for many networks including MTV, VH1, A&E, MSNBC, CNN, CBS, Animal Planet and Discovery Channel.

In 2002, he co-produced the critically acclaimed and award-winning theatrical documentary, 7 Days in September. This film chronicled the lives of New Yorkers in the week following the attacks on the World Trade Center.

Dave has been interviewed for articles in The New York Times, Hollywood Reporter, The New York Observer and lectures on the making and selling of television programming at Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, NYU's Tisch School of the Arts, Skidmore College and The Real Screen Summit.
